Body

WHEREAS, the privilege of property ownership has a corresponding responsibility of timely payment of taxes; and

WHEREAS, there are many properties in the City of Pittsburgh that are several years past due in taxes that are causing blight and destroying the quality of life for those who currently reside in our City's neighborhoods; and

WHEREAS, the City has supported the outsourcing of delinquent City real estate taxes to a 3rd party agency, Jordan Tax Service, that will consolidate and centralize the collection process with Pittsburgh Public Schools, the County of Allegheny and Pittsburgh Water and Sewer Authority as part of a greater movement towards linking tax collections; and

WHEREAS, one of the core responsibilities for the government of the City of Pittsburgh is to support the recycling of tax delinquent and abandoned property in the City of Pittsburgh; and

WHEREAS, the City of Pittsburgh was recently selected to participate in the Community Land Reform Initiative, a joint program of the Center for Land Reform and Harvard University's Kennedy School for Government, and sponsored by the Ford Foundation, to explore successful approaches to implementing large scale land recycling systems that are financially sustainable and are not dependent on public or private grant funds; and

WHEREAS, this taskforce would evaluate the creation of a land bank or other entity that would be responsible for acquiring, maintaining and facilitating in the transaction of tax delinquent and abandoned property for the purpose of transforming neighborhood liabilities into community assets; and,

WHEREAS, the formalized creation of a land bank entity could potentially facilitate the recycling of tax delinquent and abandoned residential, commercial and industrial properties through collaboration and strategic planning with community groups, businesses, non-profits, planners or other community stakeholders; and

WHEREAS, the recycling of tax delinquent and abandoned residential, commercial and industrial properties not only enhances the quality of life for those currently living in our City's neighborhoods but it also dramatically increases tax revenues and fees for local governments and authorities,
